

WASHINGTON CALLING
President's Health Big Issue

WASHINGTON—Will he or won't he have been moved into the White House shortly after the election? That is the more controversial phase of should he or shouldn't he?

President Eisenhower to run has been debating that the question of how to make an issue of the President's health and his capacity to fulfill his duties in the most difficult office in the world.

That issue has in fact already been drawn, although discussion has been confined to last September's heart attack of the President and while he reached his decision.

It has been charged that the country is being governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

Between now and November 3, 1956, will the country be governed by a party executive, President as a fraction of the President's office. From here on out, that will be the theme of the Democratic Party's campaign.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS
Illustration of a man and a woman smiling, representing a family.

PETER EDSON'S COLUMN
Butler Is Confident Demos Can Beat Ike

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Democratic National Committee Chairman Paul Butler of Indiana says he has been running all along that the man his party would have to beat in November would be the President Eisenhower or an Ike-pledged successor.

And so-to-be Chairman Butler fell short when he made a difference to the Democrats with the Republicans. Butler says that the Democrats can take him and they are mapping a national campaign which they think will do the trick.

The impression which the newspapers now give of Eisenhower's great popularity is false, says Butler. He thinks the President today is less popular than any of the last three Republican presidents was at the end of his first term.

Butler THEREFORE plans to get some amount from large numbers of voters. He says he is depending more on small contributions. Within the next few weeks Democratic headquarters in Washington will announce several new type subscription plans to get some amount from large numbers of voters.

THESE DAYS
The Effort To Kill Off Nixon

By GEORGE E. BOGOLSKY
What we seem to be discussing most these days on the Republican side is the Vice Presidency. It is somewhat in doubt whether President Eisenhower is running for re-election and that so far as the campaign convention is concerned, the by-play will settle down on the course of time.

Crossword Puzzle

RELEASE IN AFTERNOON PAPERS OF TUESDAY, MARCH 6, 1956
Young Comedian
Answer to Previous Puzzle
ACROSS: 1 Young comedian, 5 Male sheep, 7 He is a —, 11 Royal Italian name, 13 Discard, 14 Discard, 15 Discard, 16 Discard, 17 Discard, 18 Discard, 19 Discard, 20 Discard, 21 Discard, 22 Discard, 23 Discard, 24 Discard, 25 Discard, 26 Discard, 27 Discard, 28 Discard, 29 Discard, 30 Discard, 31 Discard, 32 Discard, 33 Discard, 34 Discard, 35 Discard, 36 Discard, 37 Discard, 38 Discard, 39 Discard, 40 Discard, 41 Discard, 42 Discard, 43 Discard, 44 Discard, 45 Discard, 46 Discard, 47 Discard, 48 Discard, 49 Discard, 50 Discard, 51 Discard, 52 Discard, 53 Discard, 54 Discard, 55 Discard, 56 Discard, 57 Discard, 58 Discard, 59 Discard, 60 Discard, 61 Discard, 62 Discard, 63 Discard, 64 Discard, 65 Discard, 66 Discard, 67 Discard, 68 Discard, 69 Discard, 70 Discard, 71 Discard, 72 Discard, 73 Discard, 74 Discard, 75 Discard, 76 Discard, 77 Discard, 78 Discard, 79 Discard, 80 Discard, 81 Discard, 82 Discard, 83 Discard, 84 Discard, 85 Discard, 86 Discard, 87 Discard, 88 Discard, 89 Discard, 90 Discard, 91 Discard, 92 Discard, 93 Discard, 94 Discard, 95 Discard, 96 Discard, 97 Discard, 98 Discard, 99 Discard, 100 Discard.

Letter To The Editor

FOR LOVE WORTHK...
I am writing you to let you know that I have received your letter of the 2nd inst. regarding the segregation issue in Alabama. I am sorry that I cannot do more for you at this time.

We have 45 states and some territories. Of that number about 15 are those which have enforced segregation laws. Anything beyond that is to take over. In this manner such as the law of Alabama, there are 30 or more involved and not just a Negro against the law.

Segregation was conceived in the mind of the white man and it has been passed on to his children. It cannot be said that it is the product of the Negro because he was not allowed one bit of recognition in his deliberations. He was a slave and he was a slave until he was freed.

The Negro needs no segregation to get along with white people. There is no reason why he should be segregated. He should be allowed to live with white people as they live with Negroes. He should be allowed to live with white people as they live with Negroes. He should be allowed to live with white people as they live with Negroes.

Cities Daily A Candid, Courageous Talk

The limiting factors President Eisenhower laid before America in his nationwide address obviously will be given to his readers by a Republican to him and the presentation he made gave the voters a fair start toward judging him as a candidate in 1956.

In this approach his fundamental honesty and his understanding of the world today have been in all his many dealings with the American people.

He spoke frankly, almost clinically, of the details of his heart ailment and the present state of his recovery. Without hesitancy he noted he is classed as a "recovered heart patient."

He was no less honest in pointing out that his heart attack and that which changed his living habits, and that he would function differently as President than he had before, or than a nonheart patient might do.

Thus he stressed his need for a more active regimen, for greater rest, regular exercise, and so on. And he observed that to accommodate to such a regimen meant reducing social and ceremonial events, trimming routine paper work, even handing over certain essential tasks that were fairly well advanced and therefore could be safely done.

Mr. Eisenhower obviously can not escape the reality part of his job—the major policy and administrative decisions affecting peace and domestic and social needs in the economic and social spheres.

He knows the gnawing, lonely burden of a President goes with him wherever he may be—in Washington, Gettysburg, Augusta, Denver.

He spelled all this out, he declared with confidence and vigor that he considered himself fit, under the essential limitations, to carry on the duties of his office for the full term. In support of this conviction, he said, he has both the encouraging word of the doctors and his own feeling of well-being.

The President served notice on his party and the country that he will not barstern for renomination or re-election. But this would seem a minor point, since he would not have done so even without a heart attack.

This is part of his general determination to reduce travel in conformity with his health program, yet he indicated he believes some travel is important to keep him in touch with the people and he intends to continue it.

For the first time, he disclosed he had not decided whether he desired his heart attack hit him. The country learned, too, that as he contemplated this decision—complicated as it was by health factors—he came to feel he wanted to go on.

Mr. Eisenhower is proud of what his Administration has done and seeks to do. He will campaign on that record. He earnestly wishes to extend the term. He does not think his job is done.

In 1956, he said he felt the people, not he, his advisers, not his critics or opponents, should decide whether he be the President under the prevailing circumstances he has outlined.

He is putting his case and his future as a man and as a citizen before the country in the most direct and remarkable candid address.

So They Say

We raised 10 head of children, nine of them still living. Everyone of them was taught to stay their distance from their folks but to get in all their respect. folks but to get in all their respect. folks but to get in all their respect.

bs Of Today

hit-and-run driver in Pennsylvania sighted out of one of his shoes when he fled the scene. He also lost his head. according to law, a man and his wife. When arguments start they like a lot more. n Indiana surgeon insists patients in advance. If you want a stovener to be appetizing, dig up the cash. ds with snowballs can be blamed for this winter's hit-and-run blam