

Meat Lectures Scheduled At Negro Schools

A lecture and demonstration which has been especially planned to bring information about the selection, preparation and serving of meat will be conducted at Burrill-Slater High School, Florence, Wednesday at 1 p. m. and at Sterling High School, Sheffield, at 1 p. m. on Thursday.

These presentations will dwell on facts about meat that every home-maker and student of home economics should know. Under the auspices of the home economics departments of Burrill-Slater and Sterling, this novel program will be in charge of Mrs. Hattie Henderson McSwain, a field home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, who is an Alabamian and a graduate of Tuskegee Institute, and who is an authority on all phases of the subject. She has been discovered through this vast program developed to give better meals to millions of families. The National Live Stock and Meat Board represents all branches of the livestock and meat industry—producers of livestock, marketing agencies, meat processors and meat retailers. It is a non-profit organization.

The Board is in position through its extensive program of research to give the most modern way for the proper cooking of each meat cut. Meat is an accommodating food—there is a cut for every occasion and every purse. Mrs. McSwain says. Of interest is the fact that every meat cut can be made tender if properly cooked. Those in attendance will be given an interesting lesson in the "Pan Tri-Cook."

Not only will attention be called to the wide variety of meats available on the market, but how to get the most out of each food dollar most wisely.

As the demonstration proceeds, the nutritive value of meats will be pointed out. Much interest lies in the subject of nutrition and meat offers high quality protein, minerals and vitamins.

Burrill-Slater High, Sterling High are very fortunate in being able to have the services of Mrs. Hattie Henderson McSwain for these purposes, according to W. H. Lewis, Sterling, this novel program will be in charge of Mrs. Hattie Henderson McSwain, a field home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, who is an Alabamian and a graduate of Tuskegee Institute, and who is an authority on all phases of the subject.
