CIVIL DEFENSE SURVIVAL SCHOOL TO BE HELD MAY 27

Montgomery, Ala. — A two-and-a-half-day civil defense "School for Survival" will be held at Birmingham Southern College, Birmingham May 27-29, Col. J. M. Garrett Jr., director of the State Civil Defense Department, has announced.

In announcing the school, Colonel Garrett said that Alabamians from all walks of life "who have an interest in community protection against disaster" are invited to attend.

The school will be known officially as the Warden's Leadership Conference, and among other things taught will be methods of organizing a city on a block-by-block basis for quick evacuation.

The conference is being sponsored jointly by the Regional Federal Civil Defense Administration, the State Civil Defense Department, the Birmingham-Jefferson County Civil Defense Corps and Birmingham-Southern College.

Authorities from Washington and the regional FCDA will be featured during the conference, and every phase of war-time activity in civil defense will be covered, Garrett said.

"Good citizens with a feeling of responsibility toward their fellow man and who are willing to take the leadership in assisting their local civil defense organization in training and organizing others are invited to the institute from the seven Southeastern states," he continued.

Garrett said that thousands upon thousands of wardens will be needed in civil defense organizations in the big cities and in the smaller communities in the event of enemy attack or natural disaster.

Explaining the need for wardens, Garrett said they would be responsible for evacuating their immediate neighborhood in the event of attack, fighting small fires, maintaining law and order and assisting the aged and infirm.

In smaller communities, he added, they will assist in billeting homeless evacuees from the big cities and in many other important phases of handling the mass exodus from cities.

DRIVERS FAIL TO OUITWIT RADAR

Officials in Rochester, New York, recently reported that their radar speed detection system had been in operation for more than a year and, in the entire period, no motorist has yet been able to outwit the radar-clock motor.

Officials report various drivers have used tin foil, marbles and even dragged steel chains and used lead shields between the grill and radiator, in an effort to disrupt the radar detection. Despite all these gadgetry and experiments the radar device still clocks the speed of motorists accurately.

In Rochester no one has yet been arrested for speeding because of information furnished by the radar device. However, over 2,000 motorists have received summonses based on the result of the detector.

We pass this information on to those who are fighting a losing battle against radar speed indicators, with the advice that it is a game which the driver is sure to lose.

U. S. SECURITY FORCE FAIL

The tragic part of the revelations coming from Ft. Monmouth, N. J. shows that espionage has probably been carried on here since the middle of World War II on an uninterrupted basis. There are indications that U. S. plans for defense against atomic attack have found their way from Fort Monmouth to East Germany and Russia.

The record of U. S. security forces since World War II leaves much to be desired. First, the Russians copied the major heavy bomber of the U. S. Air Force and reportedly had plans of it very early in the development stage. Next, the Russians obtained atomic bomb blueprints from the U. S. and proceeded to produce atomic bombs. They also are believed to have stolen H-bomb secrets from the U. S.

Now it turns out that they have been operating an espionage ring in a vital nerve center of the Army. It would seem that we in the United States are incapable of keeping our secrets and that our security forces have failed miserably in protecting the country's military secrets. The people of the United States will not be overly interested in the reasons for this failure unless they should demand a tightening of security and a better record of accomplishment from the security forces.

SUPREME COURT RULING ON SEGREGATION

The political Supreme Court of the United States has knocked out segregation of public schools in five states and the District of Columbia, but will hear arguments next fall as to when the ruling will be put into effect.

Though the congress and the people had the sole authority to amend the constitution, but for the past 15 or 20 years the Supreme court has taken this function upon themselves. However, while disturbing, the ruling will never be put in effect here in the deep south, not at least until many years hence. We do not believe the rank and file of the Negroes want to mingle with white students any more than our children want to mingle with the Negroes.

One candidate for sheriff suggested before the May 4th primary, that the courthouse might have to be burned down to get rid of John Sockwell. We don't think that will be necessary, for the people are likely to "burn" him down instead.

Your home, like your life, is what you make it.

It's smart to listen to good advice and equally smart not to follow it.

Summer always brings a complete shift of emphasis from halbacks to sunbacks.

TUSCUMBIA TO PROTEST HIKE IN GAS RATES

The Board of Commissioners, the Gas and Water Works Board and the Municipal Utilities Board have filed a vigorous protest with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D. C., against the application of the Alabama Tennessee Natural Gas Co. for an increase in wholesale gas rates.

Robert B. Hurston, Commissioner of Utilities, stated that he will use every effort possible to prevent this increase and that he sees no justification for such a request since the Alabama Tennessee Natural Gas Co. was granted a recent increase in wholesale rates by the Federal Power Commission on March 19th, 1954 covered by the Commission's Docket Nos. G-2253 and G-2336, which rates became effective March 1, 1954. This increase was arbitrated among the Alabama Tennessee Natural Gas Co., its jurisdictional customers and the staff of the Federal Public Utilities Commission.

This increase covered an advance from previous rates of demand of $2.60 per MCF to $2.70 per MCF and commodity of 18 1/2¢ per MCF to 21¢ per MCF.

Mr. Hurston also stated that the city will independently and jointly proceed to request the Federal Public Utilities Commission to take every possible force at its disposal and has demanded a public hearing.

For public information the three previous wholesale rate increases granted by the Federal Power Commission to the Alabama Tennessee Natural Gas Co., have been absorbed by Tusculumbia and none of such previous increases have been passed on to its residential and commercial customers.

At the date of the hearing, the city will be sufficiently represented to protect its interests.

CAN ISSUE DETERMINATION LETTERS ON INCOME

District Director of Internal Revenue George D. Patterson announced that Internal Revenue Commissioner William Andrews has delegated to the District Directors the authority to issue determination letters on routine income, profits, estate, gift, employment and excise tax matters.

In part, the Commissioner's statement as released by the District Director is as follows:

"District Directors are authorized to issue determination letters on routine income, profits, estate, gift, employment and excise tax matters. The new instructions limit a long felt need for a specific statement of the District Director's authority to issue letters on these matters. The instructions also serve as a guide to taxpayers as to the type of problems they may expect to be answered locally and those on which they should write to the National Office in Washington."

The control of policies and the issuance of precedent rulings in the National Office is continued. All administrative determinations on matters that are not in the routine category will continue to be issued from the National Office.

ALABAMA GETS READY TO CURB TRAFFIC DEATHS

MONTGOMERY. — Alabama is readying a new and powerful effective weapon for its fight to curb a serious highway death toll—radar.

Thirty-six Alabama Highway Patrol supervisors and troopers Friday completed a five-day intensified training course in the principles, adaptation and use of radar for traffic law enforcement.

The Alabama Safety Commission earlier last week issued an advisory endorsing use of radar for traffic law enforcement in Alabama, and urging the Alabama Department of Public Safety to "institute this device at the earliest practicable time."

Public Safety Director J. M. Sullivan said he moved immediately to organize the training school after obtaining the Commission's verbal statement; weeks ago, before the written advisory was drafted and issued.

Sullivan said the Department hopes to have its several radar units at work on the Fourth of July holiday week end if possible. He recalled that 16 persons were killed in traffic during the Independence Day week end last year, highest hourly toll in Alabama history for that holiday period.

"From every indication given us so far," he said, "radar could have cut that toll at least in half."

Sullivan said at last published count a year ago, 26 states and 115 cities were utilizing radar as a speed law enforcement weapon, and Alabama was nearly a year behind in filling orders at that time.

Use of radar as a traffic law enforcement device has been upheld by numerous courts in the many states and cities now using it, the public safety chief added.

Alabama's neighboring state of Mississippi instituted radar as an enforcement weapon April 1, 1953, while experiencing a 45 per cent increase in rural traffic fatalities over the comparable period of 1952. Sullivan said.

"Six months later, deaths were five per cent below the comparable period of 1952. Coupled with increased vehicle use, this represents a 59 per cent across the board reduction in traffic fatalities. Alabama needs what our 'neighboring state' has done and 30,500 injured."

During the past February alone, Sullivan pointed out, Mississippi's traffic toll was 22, while Alabama's was 79. And during the past Christmas and New Year's holiday week ends, Alabama killed 28 persons, Mississippi one.

The Third Annual Alabama Safety Conference in Montgomery last April endorsed "use of such mechanical and electronic speed-calculating machines as are competent to national standards" in enforcement of speed law which the Conference urged the Alabama Legislature to enact. The Alabama Legislature subsequently enacted the 60-50 speed law.
