SEEK FUNDS FOR CHURCH—The members of St. John's Episcopal Church, one of the oldest buildings in Tusculum, having been built in 1832, are seeking funds to help preserve it. The historic church weathered occupation by the Federal troops during the Civil War and the cyclone which ripped through Tusculum in 1874.

Preservation Of Historic Church Hoped

Funds are being sought for the preservation of historic St. John's Episcopal Church in Tusculum, it was announced yesterday.

The church is presently closed because the building is leaning badly, and extensive repairs are needed and the interior of the church is immediately in order to preserve the historic church, according to the building and fund committee.

The congregation, small in number, have given what they can toward the reconstruction, but it is a shilly, with the addition of new members necessary to call on other church-communitians. It might be opened for regular services.

Donations may be mailed to the building is one of the oldest St. John's Building Fund, B-239.
